Tradition Two (long form)

For our group purpose there is but one ultimate authority—a loving God as He may express Himself in our group conscience.

Just a thought: Tradition Two in the long form is shorter than Tradition Two in the short form...

Interview With the Author of "Doctor, Alcoholic, Addict

First in a series of articles on authors of Big Book stories

Dr. Paul's story, "Doctor, Alcoholic, Addict" is published in the Third Edition of the Big Book; his remarks on acceptance, which appear on pages 449 and 450, have been helpful to many AA members over the years. This interview was conducted by telephone to Dr. Paul's home in California.

It's a question of singleness of purpose?

That singleness of purpose thing is so significant. It seems to be working; why would we change it? I can't think of any change that would be an improvement.

Nowadays drunks seem to come to meetings already dried out, but that wasn't always the case.

No, it wasn't. You don't get Twelfth Step calls as dramatic as they used to be. Now I find that if you're called upon to make a Twelfth Step call, it'll be on somebody who is in the hospital. You find out when they're available and not in some other kind of meeting, and make an appointment. But this might change as the number of treatment programs begins to fade out.

I used to make "cold turkey" calls, where the alcoholic hadn't asked for help. One time I went to see this guy who was described to me as a big husky fellow. He was holed up in a motel. I found out from the manager of the motel that he was on the second floor, and as I was walking up the outside stairs to get to his place, I thought to myself, if this guy comes charging out the door, he could easily throw me over the stair railing and I'd end up on the concrete. So I thought, well, the good news is I'd probably be one of AA's first martyrs. Then I thought, yeah, but I'd be an anonymous martyr. I made the call anyhow, and he got sober for a while.

In your Big Book story, you say that acceptance is the key to everything. I wonder if you've ever had a problem accepting what life hands you.

I think today that my job really is to enjoy life whether I like it or not. I don't like everything I have to accept. In fact, if everything was to my specifications and desires there would be no problem with acceptance. It's accepting things I don't like that is difficult. It's accepting when I'm not getting my own way. Yes, I find it very difficult at times.

Anything specific?

Nothing major, though it sometimes seems major that I have to accept living with my wife Max and her ways of doing things! She is an entirely different person than I am. She likes clutter, I like things orderly. She thinks randomly and I like structured thinking. We're very, very different. We never should have gotten married! Last December we were married fifty-five years.

I guess she knows your thoughts on this matter.

Ad nauseum.

You're still going to meetings?

I'd say five or six a week.

Max isn't in AA, she's in Al-Anon and she's still very active in it. But I go to Al-Anon too, and that helps a great deal, and Max comes to open AA meetings with me and that helps too. It's kind of like Elsa C. used to say: when two people have their individual programs, it's like railroad tracks, two separate and parallel rails, but with all those meetings holding them together.

Do you think you'd still be married if you hadn't gone to meetings all these years?

I'm sure we wouldn't. I initially thought that the Serenity Prayer said I'd have to change the things I couldn't accept. So I thought, well, we can't get along so it's time to change the marriage. I used to go around looking for old-timers who would agree with me and say that's what the Serenity Prayer meant. But Max and I finally made a commitment to the marriage and stopped talking about divorce and started working our programs. In fact we tend to sponsor each other, which is a dangerous thing to do, but we help each other see when we need more meetings, or need to work a certain Step or something like that.

Do you have, or did you have, a sponsor?

What is a “service dog” ?

As of March 2011 only dogs are recognized as service animals under titles II and III of the ADA. A service dog is individually trained to do work or perform tasks for a person with a disability.

Box 459 Winter 2012
Correspondence With G.S.O. About Group Problems

“Reprinted from Box 4-5-9 (issue Winter 2012, page 7) with permission of A.A. World Services, Inc.”

“One common question that has been coming to G.S.O. for some years now, that has no wealth of collected experience from the Fellowship itself, is the issue of members needing to bring service dogs to A.A. meetings. Unlike guide dogs for the blind, which has been a commonly experienced sight for many of us in our lives, service dogs are less well understood. Service dogs help A.A. Members with a wide variety of challenges, such as veterans with post traumatic stress disorder, and others with seizure disorders, hearing impairments, and diabetes, to name just a few. Calls and e-mails to staff members in the office indicate that there can be very lively “diversity of opinion” in A.A. groups about this question, which can involve allergies of other members in the group, etc. Any shared experience from groups who have struggled with and then resolved this group problem would be welcome and can be sent to specialneeds@aa.org.”
